Homeopathy Works 3rd September 2009

Dr. Vittorio Elia, the lead researcher, asserted, "We are setting the basis for a new science: the physics-chemistry of homeopathic water. These results make for a strong support to the hypothesis of the existence of a memory of water."

This study confirms that there is something there in homeopathic water. It should now be known that physicians and scientists who assume that there is nothing in homeopathic medicines are showing their own ignorance of the scientific literature.

And now, nerd news.

by Ben Goldacre

This month the Journal of the American Medical Association quietly published one of the most damning papers to have appeared all year.

We have known for decades that academic publishing faces two serious problems. One is that trials often go missing in action: a drug company might do eight trials of a drug, say, but only two have a positive result
